

FIZZ BOOM READ

Looking for ways to keep your kids active during summer vacation?

You can keep their minds active with Explore Summer at Sno-Isle Libraries.

Studies show that children who read four to six books over the summer avoid the "summer slump" and maintain their reading skills, while children who read ten to twenty books improve these skills. Find free, fun programs at your community library and ideas to keep your kids active and interested in reading and learning.

These programs, focusing on science, technology, engineering, the arts and math, help children discover and learn on their own, promote critical thinking and connect children with library resources and services that support them in further exploration.
